1. The Polish-Soviet border across the Vistulian Sound (Zalew Wislany-Frisches Haff) is marked with buoys and at night is guarded with the help of searchlights. Polish fishermen who happen to go over the border are taken into custody, their boats are confiscated and are not returned. The Zalew Wislany is not mined. Large amounts of wreckage are still to be found and render fishing difficult.
2. Soviet patrol boats in groups of three to seven are often observed on the Zalew Wislany.
